Disclaimer

Aromatherapy is a gentle but powerful healing art that uses therapeutic-grade essential oils in a way that can positively affect our physical, emotional, mental and spiritual health. As fully trained Aromatherapists, we are bound by law to state that we cannot treat cancer or other life-threatening or debilitating illnesses. We can offer comfort and support aides that are compatible with medical treatments that may help to alleviate symptoms and improve overall quality of life. As we practice traditional aromatherapy, we cannot advise people to ingest essential oils. Essential oils are very concentrated essences and ingestion of them can be harmful.

Carrier Oils, Raw Materials, Creams & Butters

Carrier oils and bases are important to the practice of aromatherapy and to the soap making industry. Essential oils must be combined with a carrier oil or base to be used safely on the skin.

Care must be taken with people who have nut allergies. Please visit www.57aromas.com for more information about the products on this page.

Aromatherapy Diffusers and Accessories

Essential oil diffusers are an important part of aromatherapy. Essential oils work well when diffused around a room, releasing particles of the oil into the air to destroy air-borne bacteria, freshen the air and create a healthier environment. Many people like to have an aromatherapy diffuser on while they are working or relaxing.

Aromatherapy Cautions

Pure essential oils are a representation of nature in one of its most powerful forms. Harnessed, essential oils offer a world of possibilities to the knowledgeable user, but along with these possibilities comes a great responsibility. This is educational information and any opinions expressed here do not replace professional medical advice. If you are ill, see a suitably qualified medical practitioner.

Always use the best quality essential oils, purchased from a reputable company. Do not apply essential oils directly to skin, with the exception of Tea Tree and Lavender (still use with caution). Do not use essential oils if you are taking homeopathic remedies without consulting with homeopathic doctor first. Do not use the same essential oil exclusively over a long period of time. You can become sensitive to the oil. Always blend essential oils in a well-ventilated room. Do not take essential oils internally. Always follow suggested amount, however, use less rather than more if you are unsure of amounts.

Keep essential oils away and out of reach of children. Keep essential oils away from eyes. When adding essential oil to the bath, drop directly under running water to avoid high concentration and skin sensitivity. Essential oils are flammable and should not be stored by any open flame such as candles. We have heard of self-combustion in towels folded and stacked straight from the dryer. Please read more at www.57aromas.com/kb/display/49.
